

SFGATE

RIGHT OFF THE TRAIN? HERE ARE THE BEST SPOTS TO EAT NEAR BART STATIONS

By Katie Dowd

Meeting a friend at the Ferry Building? The SF location of Gott's Roadside is a safe bet with nearly everyone, offering a selection of burgers, salads and ice cream treats.

Meeting up with a friend? Too lazy to venture far for dinner? Or just exhausted and hungry after standing through yet another long BART ride home?

If you're like many BART commuters, your experience of the area around your home and work BART stops is probably pretty limited. But there's plenty of culinary space out there to explore — and lots of wonderful food just in range of BART.

In order to make the cut, the restaurant or cafe has to be within a short walking distance — no more than about a mile. After all, when you're hungry, there's no time to be traipsing all over. We asked around the SFGATE team for their favorite food stops near BART, and used Yelp's top-rated restaurants to fill in the gaps.